

Seen Enough
(Stephen Stills)

I lost my innocence over intolerance
All the indignities heaped on the blackman
We went to church, they all prayed for the white man
The cops and the preachers were most of them in the klan What's a kid s'posed to think when the adults are all such hypocrites, impossibly smug

I have seen enough, I have seen enough of this Had enough, quiete enough, I swear

The next generation, the Woodstock nation
A little bit flaky, but no hesitation Stop the war, it wasn't worth dyin' for The paranoia of the cold warriors
Arrogant old men with domino theories
Fractured fairy-tales tryin' to kill me

I've seen enough..

You got outcast upset people you never met
Locked in the basement, hot-wired to the net Isolated, infuriated, the punchline to the joke is how they are gonna smoke
Every last stuck-up snob ever dissed them
Look in thir eyes, how could you missthem

Ain't you seen enough
I have seen enough of this
I've had quiete enough
Seen enough

We got dead-eyed, dead drunk dead stupid cyber punks
Fed-up killer geeks, gigabyte meth freaks
Home alone in a world of their own
Up all night in the thick of the fight
Fantasy combat, veteran psychos
Removed from realiy by silicon diodes

Seen enough...

You got powerbook potentates, pointedly obviate every opinion they have about anything
Even if they don't know shit stay in the limelight
Got your own website, got all the answers
Ain't got a lick of sense, practising psychiatry without a license

Ain't you seen...

So you got overfed, talking heads on television
Ignoring the obvious with pained expressions Ask the ones that sell the damn guns by the truckload every day Fast as they can make them what's a kids'posed to think when the adults refuse all accountability when they fuck up

Ain't you seen...
