

Wind
(Bob Bruno)

You say that once knew for sure
But now you're walkin' into shore to wonder*
The more you learn the less you know
The more you move the more you go to nowhere*
You play your role of comedy
Profess you well the tragedy that you're living
'Cause love was sure or so you say
Like the wind that blew away and as she left she seemed to say the wind is

Love it's the wind
The wind is my love
Who knows the wind?
Where blows my love?
The wind is my love

The city sun blinks in your eyes
You shade your face you realize the lonely crowd
You stagger on up to your room
To sleep by day and plot by moon, your conscience flies
You pack your dreams, you'll move away
Decide to eat and live by day and leave the night
And all at once there comes a smile
The ice warm air moves by and as you leave you seem to say

Love is the wind
The wind is my love
Who knows the wind?
Where blows my love
The wind is my love.
