

Zah's Blues
(Parsons)

A baby doesn't know
How loneliness can feel
She has her own small world
And nothing in it's real
Just spread joy all around
And watch the sun coming down

When I was young the world was rich
With spices and par fays
My heart was filled with pride
My head was filled with praise
I wore my youth like a crown
And watch the sun coming down

Love only lasts for a moment
Life holds a brief smile for all
The sunshine can't last forever
And soon the night must fall

Memories can fade
In dreams that you can find
You'll finally reach the end
And never look behind
No use in turning around
It's just the sun coming down

No use in turning around
It's just the sun coming down
It's just the sun coming down
