

Have You Room for the King
Maude Hart, 1908.

Have you room for the King, should He come today?
Could you bid Him to enter in?
Would your garments be white, could you to Him say,
"I am ready and free from sin"?

Refrain

Have you room for the King, yes, room for the King,
Should He call for your spirit today?
Could you say, "I am Thine, yes, wholly am Thine,
And walking in the King's highway."

There was never a mansion so bright and blest,
There was never a place so fair
As the one where the King has become a guest;
This glory we all may share.

Refrain

Have you room in your heart for the King? I say;
Is it open to His command?
He is waiting to show you the perfect way,
The way to the better land.
