

Never Say No, When the Master Calls
Henry Frisbie, 1906.

Wherever my pathway of duty leads,
Thro' sands of the desert, or fragrant meads,
O may I be faithful, whatever befalls,
May I never say no, when the Master calls.

Refrain

May I never say no, when the Master calls,
May I never say no, when the Master calls;
Whatever it be He requires of me,
May I never say no, when the Master calls.

If darkness or sunshine be 'round my way,
To ever be faithful, my Lord, I pray;
In lowliest cottage, or proudest of halls,
May I never say no, when the Master calls.

Refrain

If into the battle, or called to stand
And wait with my armor and sword in hand,
His will shall be mine, for no danger appalls,
If I never say no, when the Master calls.

Refrain

He never forsakes me, my strength and song!
No service a burden, no struggle long!
His care is around me like sheltering walls,
If I never say no, when the Master calls.
