

Thou Delightest, O Lord

Amos Wells, 1901.

Charles Brown.

Thou delightest, O Lord, when Thy children draw near

To worship and praise and confess;

Now banish our sorrow, our doubt and our fear;

Be present to guide and to bless.

Touch our ears with Thy finger, and then we shall hear

Soft voices that speak from Thy Word;

Touch our eyes into seeing, and then shall appear

The glory of Jesus, our Lord.

Be the words of our tongues, and the theme of our song;

Be our purpose, our praise, and our prayer;

And be to us here what Thou art to the throng

Of angels that worship Thee there.
