

Who Shall Have Your Soul Tonight
Leonard Jenkins, 1920.
Otto Hirschler.

Jesus' life is calling you,
Calling you tonight;
And the world is calling, too
Which shall be your light?
Jesus' way is perfect, right;
Who shall have your soul tonight?
Make your choice tonight;
Which shall be your light?
Jesus' way is perfect, right;
Who shall have your soul tonight?

Jesus' cross is hard to bear
Up the narrow height,
But His saints are walking there
Walking there tonight.
Steep the way, but Jesus' might
Guides them safely day and night.
Make your choice tonight;
Which shall be your light?
Steep the way, but Jesus' might
Guides them safely day and night.

Jesus' love is calling you,
Calling you tonight;
Oh, the world is calling, too!
With His cross in sight,
Jesus' love is tender, right;
Shall He win your love tonight?
Make your choice tonight;
Which shall be your light?
Jesus' love is tender, right;
Shall He win your love tonight?

Jesus' voice is calling you,
Pleading nowtonight,
Silently as falling dew,
Sweet with gentle might,
Like the rays of morning light;
Shall He win your soul tonight?
Make your choice tonight;
Which shall be your light?
Like the rays of morning light;
Shall He win your soul tonight?
