

Irish Song Lyrics

Ireland
Garth Brooks

They say mother earth is breathing with each wave that finds the shore
Earth's still rises in the evening
For to open twilights door

Her eyes are the stars in heaven
Watching ore' us all the while
And her heart it is in Ireland
Deep within the Emerald Isle

We all fought agains a 100
Someone else's bloody war
We no not why we're fighting
Or what we're dying for

They will storm us in the morning
When the sunlight turns the sky
Death is waiting for its dance now
They have sentenced us to die

Ireland Ireland I am coming home
I can see the rolling fields of green
And fences made of stone
I am reaching out wont you take me home
I am coming home Ireland

Oh the captain he lay bleeding
I can hear him calling me
These men are now yours for your legion
Show them to your destiny

As I look around me
I see the raged and the torn
I tell them to make ready
Cos we're not waiting for the morn

Ireland Ireleand I am coming home
I can see the rolling fields of green
And fences made of stone
I am reaching out wont you take me home
I am coming home Ireland

Mow the fog is deep and heavy
As we forged the dark and near
We can hear the horses breathing
As in silence we draw near

And there are no words to be spoken
Just the look to say good bye
I draw a breath and night is broke n
As I scream our battle cry

Ireland Ireland I am coming home etc
I can see the rolling fields of green
And fences made of stone
I am reaching out wont you take me home

I am coming home Ireland
Yes I am home Ireland
