

Anthem of the ILGWU
a 1934 song without an identified composer

One battle is won, but the fight's just begun,
And the union's flag unfurled;
United, we're strong; let us march t'ward the dawn
Of a brave, new workers' world.

Oh, Union of the Garment Workers,
To you we ever will be true;
We'll build and we'll fight, and we'll rise in our might
With the ILGWU!

North, south, east, and west, all the workers oppressed,
Join the union ranks today;
Our banners are bright as they float red and white
Where our union leads the way.

Oh, Union of the Garment Workers,
To you, we ever will be true;
We'll build and we'll fight, and we'll rise in our might
With the ILGWU!
