Words & Music by Joan Whitney & Alex Kramer
Recorded by Margaret Whiting, 1949

E                           E6       E
Far-away places with strange-sounding names,

F#m                       B7
Far away over the sea;

E                          E+7          A9       A-9  A  Am6
Those far-away places with the strange-sounding names

E                        B7       E       Edim       B7
Are calling, calling me.

E                          E6       E
Goin' to China, or maybe Siam;

F#m                  B7
I want to see for myself

E                          E+7       A9       A-9  A  Am6
Those far-away places I've been reading about

E                        B7              E
In a book that I took from the shelf.

Bridge:
E7  A                          Bm7-5     E
I start getting restless whenever I hear

C7   B7    Bm7-5              E    E7
The whistle of a train;

A                        B7      E
I pray for the day I can get underway

B7   F#7                       F#m7   B7
And look for those castles in Spain.

E                          E6       E
They call me a dreamer well, maybe I am,

F#m                   B7
But I know that I'm burning to see

E                          E+7          A      AM7     A7    D9
Those far-away places with the strange-sounding names

E                        B7       G#7   G7       F#m7    F7+9   E6
Calling, calling me.
