Give Me Back Your Smiles Again.
Copyright, 1887. by W. H. Ewald & Bro.

Tho' the words of pain were spoken,
And I wander'd from your side;
Tho' each tender link was broken,
Yet my love I cannot hide!
Still your image comet to cheer me,
To forget is all in vain!
Like some angel linger near me,-
Give me back your smiles again!
Oh, the world tome is lonely,
And my life one dream of pain;
Tis of you I think of only,
Give me back your smiles again!

When the flow is of summer perish,
Still I think of one sweet flow'r,
That you bade me fondly cherish.
In dear hope's enchanted hour!
Tho' your gift long since has faded,
Tell me not that love can wane!
Let the clouds depart that shaded,-
Give me back your smiles again!
Never more my heart shall doubt you,
Let the past be not in vain;
Life can ne'er be life without you,-
Give me back your smiles again!
