Bold

Our ancestors formerly great valour they have shown,
 Great exploits for Ireland's rights since James's war was known;
 Likewise the valiant Sarsfield his losses did bemoan,
 When he reproved St. Ruth for the losing of Athlone.

We rode with brave Lord Lucan before the break of day,
 Until we came to Kinmagown where the artillery lay;
 Then God He cleared the firmament moon and stars gave light,
 And for the battle of the Boyne we had revenge that night.
