

On Let Us Go
Fanny Crosby, 1886.
John Sweney.

On let us go where the valley of Eden fair
Blooms on the bank of the river;
On where the fields, in the beautiful robe they wear,
Wave in the sunlight forever.

Refrain

On let us go, on let us go, on let us go,
On where the happy ones are calling.

On let us go where the beautiful realms above
Ring with the time honored story;
Saved through the might of a blessed Redeemer's love,
His be the praise and the glory.

Refrain

On let us go where the weary and toil oppressed
Soon shall forget every sorrow;
On where the soul to a happy and golden rest
Wakes in eternity's morrow.

Refrain

On let us go where the loving and loved shall meet,
Meet on the bank of the river;
There shall they sing at the blessed Redeemer's feet
Songs that shall echo forever.
