

What Do the Flowers Say

Lizzie DeArmond, 1908.

Ira Wilson.

What do the dear little flowers say,
Nodding about us so glad and gay?
Blooming in beauty for Easter day,
Bright Easter day.

Refrain

"Gladly we welcome the risen King,
Beauty and sweetness to Him we bring."
This is the word that the flowers say,
On this joyous Easter day.

What do the dear little flowers say,
Turning their faces to Heaven's blue!
Giving out perfume the whole day thro',
This Easter day.

Refrain

What do the dear little flowers say?
Listen, while slowly they bend and sway,
Bowing their heads in a reverent way,
This Easter day.
