WILL THIS THING EVER END? NO, NEVER!

Words and Music by Will H. Fox.

I've got a little song to sing, the title it is new;

Will this thing ever end I No, never!

And ere I finish up my lay you'll find the words are true;

Will this thing ever end? No, never!

Old England has been kicking about the Behring Sea:

She'd better let well enough alone and set old Ireland free.

That would be appreciated more, I think you'll all agree;

"Twould make many souls happy forever!

The fighters now throughout the land are at their bluffs again.

Will this thing ever end? No, never!

I thought all bluffs had ended when Mitchell crossed the main;

Will this thing ever end? No, never!

There's no dispute Fitzimmons is the greatest middle-weight,

With McAuliffe, Slavini and Dixon in their classes they are great;

But whoever goes against John L. will surely meet their fate;

And remember John L.'s right forever!

Preachers leave their pulpits now and go "round buying wine;

Will this thing ever end? No, never!

The scenes that they had witnessed, in their sermons they define;

Will this thing ever end? No, never!

It's right, I will acknowledge, for us to stop all vice;

Yet to play leap-frog with pretty girls it really must be nice;

But before I'd speak of it in church, I think I would think twice?

Such remarks should have an end forever!
