

Coffee in Bed

Words and Music by Tom Paxton

How'd you like your coffee in bed this morning?

How'd you like some sugar in your cup?

Fluff up your pillow, pull up the covers,

How'd you like to never get up?

We can unplug the telephone, honey,

And never turn the radio on.

How'd you like your coffee in bed this morning,

All morning long?

I don't want to hear the babblin' of the radio,

Telling us to rise and greet the dawn.

I don't want the sunlight peekin' 'round the curtains,

Saying, 'Time to get your game face on.'

Wouldn't it be crazy not to feel a little lazy,

When I'm lyin' in the bed with you?

It's not so surprising that the temperature is rising,

So, honey, here's what we'll do...

Whoa, how'd you like your coffee in bed this morning?

How'd you like some sugar in your cup?

Fluff up your pillow, pull up the covers,

How'd you like to never get up?

We can unplug the telephone, honey,

And never turn the radio on.

How'd you like your coffee in bed this morning,

All morning long?

- Instrumental -

Would you like a cup of coffee?

I know you like it hot.

It's the best in town,

If we drink it all down,

We can always make another pot.

Oh, how'd you like your coffee in bed this morning?

How'd you like some sugar in your cup?

Fluff up your pillow, pull up the covers,

How'd you like to never get up?

We can unplug the telephone, honey,

And never turn the radio on.

How'd you like your coffee in bed this morning,

All morning, all morning, all morning long?
